VERY IMPORTANT BEWARE

You will LOVE the crew on the Equinox, with their big smiles and they are always willing to help in any situation.

However, please do not mistake the big smile and friendliness as an invitation that they want to play with you. THEY DO NOT. All the crew have families back home and they need these jobs to send money back to them.

This is a double edged sword; if any of the crew are caught doing anything by the 1400 cameras on board, they will be immediately fired and off the ship. AND if you are involved, you will also be escorted off the ship at next port (No Refund and on your own). There are 1435 couples on board - so you already have unlimited choices.

Wayne's Corner

Hi Everyone - and welcome to WAYNE 'S CORNER, where you can find details of things happening behind the scenes and to show you new ways of meeting additional couples.

No question, with the two devastating hurricanes, this charter has been significantly more challenging. So, what was the process in getting a new itinerary? We can assure you that it was not easy or fast and inevitably was complicated for every cruise line shifting ships away from the Eastern Caribbean. Plus, dozens of ships were now returning from Europe or South America and looking for new places to go throughout the winter months. Consequently, every port authority was bombarded with requests to find berths for these ships. We realized very quickly that all ports in the Western Caribbean were going to be very crowded and would be difficult to arrange quality excursions for our guests. So, we had to look to the Southern Caribbean. We were able to secure Aruba, but it took almost one week to be successful. However, we were unable to obtain the two close islands of Curacao or Bonaire. We were shocked to find that Coco Cay had no ships on the one day we needed it so we secured this as fast as we could. We had the added benefit of now having a totally clothing optional day for you. So, everything worked out and we have a great itinerary for our guests.

Now that we have chosen Aruba, a number of clients have asked, "What about the speed of the ship in going there? Will this be a problem for high winds on the deck?" At sea, you can never tell what is going to happen. Of course, as usual, we will be going faster the first night, but then the average speed will only be 17 knots, meaning a pleasant few days at sea to journey to Aruba.

There are just so many interesting things to do in Aruba. Check out the excursions and, of course, the best thing is to always go with another couple. The island is famous for its short bursts of rain; a lot of sunshine and, of course, the famous trade winds. One of the interesting quirks of geography, and as the ship is heading north from Aruba, we will pass through an area where 3 separate ocean currents meet, so for about 30 - 45 minutes it may be a little bumpy.

I am often asked who picks the entertainment for the ship. This is a collaborative effort between Celebrity and our Productions Team. As with all companies, we receive an entertainment budget from Celebrity, but then everything we spend above that, BLISS has responsibility. We normally bring on 5 additional DJ's, additional bands, speakers, comedians, and approximately 80 staff members. You will notice that our Daily Planner is packed every day with activities in multiple locations, you just cannot do everything. It's done that way on purpose so you will return to do what you missed. Also, don't forget the numerous Meet and Greets that are in place everyday so that you can meet others who are interested in the same kinds of naughtiness. There are even Meet and Greets for those who are on the cruise just to get away with no kids.

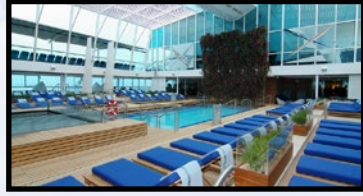

Our 2nd port will be Coco Cay. The first time I went there was about 20 years ago, and it wasn't as developed as it is today. This private island has received multiple upgrades over the years, is gorgeous and there are so many things to do. Best of all, this day will be totally clothing optional and your drink packages and Sea Pass Cards will work on the island. So, yes, get off the ship and enjoy all the eye candy.

Finally, we will be back in the Eastern Caribbean in November 2019 and we hope to see lush green islands again. Join us then. You can book that cruise while you are with us this time.

Thank you for being part of BLISS

Solarium Playroom
Deck 12
10 PM-3 AM

Two entrances lead you into one of the most impressive and desired play areas of the ship. With 69 "play beds" to enjoy, you'll have plenty of space for yourself and to bring your newest friends, too. By day, the Solarium acts as what it was intended for, a Solarium. By night, it's transformed, as sounds of eroticism take over.

House Rules: This playroom is couples in/couples out. No outside drinks permitted. A water station is provided for comfort. The pool is open for use. For noise and humidity control, the jacuzzies are closed during playroom operational hours. All used personal protection must be disposed of in waste baskets provided.

Should you not meet the dress code, changing stations are provided at both entrances of the Solarium. Laundry bags must be cleaned immediately after use. Therefore, the laundry bags are not permitted to leave the Solarium. Place your used bag in the disposal area upon exit.

Superior Service: An elite team of lifestyle couples volunteer to provide operational maintenance of the playroom: greeting guests, ushering, providing fresh towels, changing sheets, sanitizing areas after each use, distributing condoms, lube, and more. If you need something, just ask.

What're the first things all newbies should do?

By Lynn O, TheSwingerCruise.com

Some people say attend a meet & greet! Go to naked speed dating! How about a seminar on spanking/squirting/dirty dancing?

Here is the truth. The #1 thing to do is to 'Have the Talk.' An open discussion between the two of you about what you want to experience today. How far each of you is comfortable going now; what things are okay; what things are not okay; and, your plan for what to do if something doesn't feel right. During the Talk, it's important to be specific, to create a plan and know that in all this excitement things can change fast!

I'm sure that everyone onboard had 'The Talk' to some extent prior to planning a trip like this. That's a great start. The important thing to learn in the article is to have the talk often. There is a huge energy onboard this ship. It can sweep you up and turn this into the most fun week you have ever have. However if you don't have an awareness of it, you might find yourself asking 'how did we get here?'

Happy Couples Tip #1: Make it a ritual to start your day off in a relaxed space with your partner and take time to share and listen. Vacations transform you, make sure you know what's happening with your partner and you share what's happening inside you! Then enjoy the excitement.

Put your mind at ease, and get your body excited. The most frequent question new couples ask me about is the pressure to participate. Visions of a huge orgy pile, with pressure from strangers to jump in make them feel nervous, the fear of being groped without consent adds tension. Rest assured the ship is a zero pressure zone, and there is no tolerance for violating other people's boundaries.

Indeed if you look around you may discover the location of an orgy pile somewhere onboard this ship, but notice you have to actually look for it because it will only be available for those eager to participate and only in the 'pre-approved' areas. And just because you find that exciting party pile, don't think you can just dive right in. There are rules and proper protocol for getting invited.

If you are wondering, 'How can we get involved?' The number one way to find out if you can join in? ASK! What you'll find in the lifestyle is an incredibly respectful community, where the ladies are in charge and their comfort is paramount. This is a community where you can talk about your fantasies, and nothing is taboo.

Ultimately, the idea is to facilitate communication and bring each couple a little bit closer.

As you make your way around the ship, enjoying its bounty and meeting new people, keep in mind there is no expectation to participate. At first, you might be taken aback by the frankness of your fellow passengers, many of whom are seasoned cruise veterans.

On a vacation like this, there isn't much point in playing coy. Introductions might be followed by a casual, cheerful rundown of what a couple enjoys intimately or sexually. This is not done with the intent to intimidate, but rather to establish compatibility. You might find it a refreshing change from the verbal dancing that governs social interaction in the normal world. You might receive invitations delivered with the same friendly frankness.

Again, couples on the cruise are sensitive to the needs of newbies. Everyone here was a newbie once. Most are happy to help you make your first time fun and easy. If you are new don't be afraid to tell everyone. That is the best way to make a bunch of friends who are eager to help show you the ropes. (Sometimes even literally!)

If being this open and upfront intimidates you, then perhaps you would benefit from attending a seminar or two. I'm offering a Newbies Class on Day 2. It's packed with all sorts of great ideas and tips. I even share my '100% intimidation proof, never fails, works every time pick up line.' If you are curious, be sure to stop by.

You do not HAVE to play with anyone, but the delicious part is knowing you have that option at any time. How you meet and play with others is crucial to getting the most out of your cruise. When helping couples decide on the right vacation I often hear worries about spending the money, taking precious vacation time, and then not having the amazing experiences they were hoping for.

It's true that you'll get more out of your trip if you're willing to put more into it. A willingness to be open, frank, and outgoing about what you as a couple enjoy, and what you'd like to explore, is a must. Naturally, this is easier for some than for others, but there are a few simple techniques you can practice and tips to follow to ensure that even a more introverted couple can get out there and play.

When it comes to maximizing your cruise potential, a little homework goes a long way. Some prep time learning about the swinger, and maybe the kink, lifestyles will help you establish common ground with people, even if they're proposing things you never really thought of trying.

For starters, know your terms. Remember that big orgy pile that not everyone is into? Having the right vocabulary enables you to find and communicate with the people you want to play with, without winding up in there.

Knowing key terms also reduces the potential for misunderstanding and the accidental crossing of boundaries, be they the other couple's or your own. A few key terms:

Soft swap: Play the includes some or all forms of non-penetrative sex. It can be as simple a making out, up to and including oral pleasure. A soft swap couple might prefer all participants to be in the same room, both for comfort and safety.

Full swap: A full swap couple is most likely receptive to penetrative sex with their chosen playmates. Full swapping may include pairing off (truly "swapping") partners, and sex in separate cabins.

Kinky: Kink spans a range of activities and mindsets that broadly branch out into two aspects: the pain/pleasure dynamic and the power exchange dynamic. A kinky player might enjoy light impact play (spanking) or heavy impact play (whipping). Or they might enjoy the power exchange of being told what to do, or who to do it with, during sex. The world of kink is so broad that there's a little something for everyone, and it's worth having an open discussion with a couple who has kink on their dance card, to ensure everybody gets a little of what fulfills them.

Making a first impression

First impressions are key, especially in an environment as erotically charged as this. A great way to break the ice is to have an "elevator pitch" ready. This is nothing more than a 20 second verbal introduction that you have, rehearsed and ready, for when you meet a new couple- basically your names, a short and sweet lifestyle profile (including your limits), and an offer.

For example:

"Hi, we're Sarah and Steve. She loves bi-friendly ladies (as do I) and we're a soft swap couple with a kinky side. We say that we're "swinky." We're looking for new friends to join us for dinner. Do you have plans tonight?"

At first you may think this sounds forced, but rest assured, a forthright elevator pitch gives you the ability to appear warm, engaging, and open; it puts others at ease and gives them an opportunity to decide whether you would be a good fit for mutual fun and adventure.

The Big Turn Down

That same frank, friendly openness is a good demeanor to practice in case you have to reject offers. All couples won't be a perfect fit, and it's a good idea

Lynn has the information you need to get the most out of your experience on this Bliss Cruise. As the owner of TheSwingerCruise.com she has traveled on over 27 full ship charters. She loves sharing her experiences with you so can have the best possible experience. Really, no questions will go unanswered.

to get on the ship with the knowledge that you may need to turn someone down.

Given the limited duration of the cruise, most couples would prefer a friendly, "I appreciate the offer, but this isn't the right fit for us," rather than the long, mixed message, "I don't want to hurt your feelings by directly saying no" approach that the social contract of everyday life instills within us.

Happy Couple Tip #2 Have something to say! Everyone feels nervous at times. It helps to have something to say. If you can spit out your names, a short and sweet lifestyle profile (including your limits), and an offer you are heading in the right direction.

The latter wastes the rejected party's time. Time they could have spent with a more amenable couple. The former lets them move on quickly and engenders no animosity. There is no need to explain why you're not interested; no one is here to receive a categorical list of their shortcomings. A "thanks, but we're not interested" and a smile will suffice. If the other part can't accept that, you'll have proof positive that your declination of their invitation was the right call to make.

Yes, no or maybe

As you start to play asking is the key. We have all heard it before, but No means no. An important tip I'd like to add is that 'maybe' also means 'no.' Only a clear 'yes' from everyone involved should be the signal to move forward.

Sustaining that level of comfort is vital during intimate encounters, too. It's important never to go faster than either partner is comfortable going, and it is up to each individual not to push their partner further than he or she is comfortable going. No matter how excited you are about the situation. Think back to the talk and respect your partner's limits. The idea is to create moments in which participants WANT to proceed, not situations in which they feel intimidated, or feel like they cannot back out. Nothing will undo the magic of an erotic vacation faster or more thoroughly than violating your own partner's boundaries.

Say yes to exploring and you'll come home from this cruise with a better understanding of your desires, and how they relate to those of your partner.

UNICORN

What is a Unicorn? Swingerdictionary.com determines it as a slang for a single, generally bisexual female that participates in the swing lifestyle. Referred to as a "Unicorn" because they are so rare, they are also the most sought after in the lifestyle.

Being a single lady, or Unicorn in the lifestyle can be a rewarding experience, it can also garner benefits from a couples perspective.

Although these women are rare, they are not hard to find. The benefits of being a single swinging woman in the lifestyle are amazing. When a swinger party is thrown the usual is a free entrance for single ladies. Unicorn's will more than likely get their drinks for free and they can have the pick of any couple, or man at the event at most given times.

When Unicorns are at a swinging event, be honest. What this means is, if you are or are not bisexual, let the couple or Unicorn know this up front. If you are not honest up front it can irritate people and cause trouble. Some women actually like to share their male partners with a straight woman as there are many fetishes and turn-ons for each individual.

Unicorns need to be respectful of couples and their boundaries and since they are single some ladies may be cautious of you, especially if you are not bi. Just be sincere about your desires, and be sure to address any concerns that the couple may have with you. Again don't pretend to be bisexual if you are not just to have sex with a guy.

Unicorns probably have the most fun in the lifestyle, they can have one man, one woman or both please her, while the couple will also be pleased at the same time. Unicorns have the advantage of a no strings attached relationship, and therefore do not need to abide by a spouses rules. But most importantly, if you are a couple, you need to abide by the rules you and your partner have agreed upon. Unicorns although rare, are not hard to find, especially in the digital age. Swinger sites like SwingLifeStyle have so many members, and it's recognized as the largest swingers site. With that in mind, finding one will be easier than you think. The hard part is setting it up, again just as Unicorns need to be honest, you as a couple need to be honest. Some Unicorns may only want a bisexual experience with the wife, so be honest with everyone cross the board. Some readers have written in on this subject telling me they can not find one, but when questioned, they can't find one that will play with them by their rules. Again, some Unicorns may only want to play with one partner, some may want both of you, or just the husband. Make sure everyone is on the same page, if one of the three of you are not comfortable, then move on to the next.

Think about the kind of person who would be compatible with you and your lifestyle. Go over your wants, What do you enjoy? What do you believe? What do you want to share with this person? Give up the assumption that you'll find one person who will fit with both members of a couple. It might happen, it might not, don't be disgruntled or lower your standards. Keep in mind that just knowing that a couple is specifically looking for a bi female to be with them sexually is enough to send most single bisexual females running. You know why?

Because there are too many couples looking for threesome, they are not interested in a particular woman because of whom she is, they want a female to have sex with. This is where you have to be honest and be subtle and not too pushy for either party. The single ladies get blasted with emails, even hate mail. Unicorns complain that too many couples and single males send hate mail if they are turned down. One email will suffice, and make sure you are honest, and your letter resembles your profile. The last thing you want is an email to a Unicorn looking for a bisexual threesome and your profile is listing the wife as being straight. Abide by the above aforementioned and you will have a fun mystical journey as a Unicorn or with a Unicorn in the lifestyle.
